Private Ernst Ehrmann

Yishuv volunteers to the British Army

Died 31.8.1940

Burial place unknown, a memorial stone is found at London Tower

Life story

Ernst was a motorist on SS Har-Zion. At the outbreak of WWII, Har Zion was attached to the British Merchant Navy and sailed between British and Mediterranean ports. In 1940 it took part in the efforts to break the siege of German submarines on Britain and was one of the ships to pass through the Atlantic Ocean. When Har Zion was on its way from Britain to the United States, it was hit by a German submarine and drowned with 33 crew members on board, 17 of which were volunteers from Eretz Yisrael and Ernst among them.

A research conducted in 2017 found that he is commemorated on Tower Hill in London, on panel 55. He was aged 37 and held the rank of Fireman.

Life story

Source: Ehrmann family

Description:

Ernst worked as a banker in Berlin, where in 1923 he married Erika Wunsch. Together they had moved to live in Munich where in 1924 their only daughter was born. Numerous years later, the family returned to Berlin. In 1931, their marriage ended in divorce. Ernst wished to return to his academic studies and profess in economy and business administration, but soon after the Nazi party gained power in 1933, he made preparations to leave for Palestine. For that purpose, he moved to live in Hamburg and trained as a fisherman. After gaining his certificate to leave, in the summer of 1936 he left Germany.

After leaving the country, communication with his family was scarce. Stories relate to him living in a Kibbutz and possibly being a member in one of the Jewish militant organizations in fight for independence.

In 1938, Ernst took his first journey as a seaman. He later joined the Merchant Navy. Upon boarding "Har Zion" he notified his sister in Boston of his expected arrival to America, but did not complete his journey.

Danny Zimrin's blog on shipping history of Israel

Description:

Free translation from the insert on SS Har Zion:

"At the end of August 1940 Har Zion was torpedoed by a U-38 German submarine, commanded by Heinrich Liebe. It was on its way from Liverpool to the port of Savannah in the US, which indicates that the old ship, which was used up to this point for short journeys, was found fit to cross the Atlantic. Not much is known on the circumstances of its drowning: Such events were so common during the war, that only basic details are known. It seems that the weather was extremely stormy, a lifeboat that was used had turned over in the water and the seafarers that were in it surrendered to the cold - all but one, a Greek-Cypriot who survived long hours in the stormy water and collected by a British vessel. Here (in Palestine) the story hit chords, as 17 of the dead were local and this was still in the early stages of the war. Attached is a letter sent to the families of the deceased."
